

Prepare your phone for protests

Consider not bringing your phone at all

Think about your own risks and how your phone's contents might endanger those who you're communicating with.

Use messaging apps that can't be intercepted

Signal and Whatsapp are encrypted services.

Turn off Location Tracking

Turn on airplane mode or turn off location history/services.

Use a passcode, not fingerprint or face recognition

The longer your passcode the better. Passcodes have more legal protection than biometrics.

Turn off or obscure notifications

If your phone is seized, notifications can reveal info about anyone getting in touch with you.

Before You Share

Take screenshots of any photos and post those instead to strip out identifying metadata. Cover up identifying information for people and locations.

Physicalize Your Phonebook

Phones can run out of battery, get lost, broken, or taken away. Write down a lawyer or emergency contact on your arm in Sharpie.

Find your local National Lawyers Guild support hotline: nlg.org/chapters

More information at themarkup.org/prepmyphone

The Markup is a nonprofit newsroom that investigates how powerful institutions are using technology to change our society